MEMOIR OF THE
REV. DR. JOHN KELLY,

(From the Gentleman's Magazine for January, 1810.)

DR. KELLY, Rector of Copford, near Colchester, and in the Commission of the Peace for Essex, was born on the 1st of November, 1750, at Douglas, in the Isle of Man. Descended from a line of forefathers who had from time immemorial possessed a small freehold near that town, called Aalcaer, which devolved on the Doctor, he was placed under the tuition of the Rev. Philip Moore, Master of the Free Grammar School of Douglas. Mr. Kelly became speedily distinguished by quickness of intellect, by his industry, and by the rapidity of his classical progress. From the pupil he became the favourite and the companion of his instructor; whose regard he appears particularly to have conciliated by his skill in the vernacular dialect of the Celtic tongue spoken in that Island.

Ere his attainment of seventeen, Young Kelly attempted the difficult task of reducing to writing the grammatical rules, and proceeded to compile, a Dictionary of the language. The obvious difficulties of such an undertaking to a school-boy, may be estimated by the consideration that this was the very first attempt to embody, to arrange, or to grammaticize this language;—that it was made without any aid whatever from books, MSS., or oral communications;—but merely by dint of observation on the conversation of his unlettered countrymen.

It happened at this moment that Dr. Hildesley, the then Bishop of Sodor and Man, had brought to maturity his benevolent plan of bestowing on the natives of the Island a translation of the Holy Scriptures, of the Common Prayer Book, and of some religious tracts in their own tongue. His Lordship most gladly availed himself of the talents and attainments of the subject of this brief notice, and prevailed upon him to dedicate several years of his life to this favourite object. The Scriptures had been distributed in portions amongst the insular clergy for each to translate his part. On Mr. Kelly the serious charge was imposed of revising, correcting, and giving uniformity to these several translations of the Old Testament, and also that of conducting through the press the whole of these publications. In June, 1768, he entered on his duties. In April, 1770, he transmitted the first portion to Whitehaven, where the work was printed:—and when conveying the second, he was ship-wrecked, and narrowly escaped perishing. The manuscript with which he was charged was held up five hours above water, and was nearly the only article on board preserved. In the course of “his labours in the vineyard” he transcribed with his own hand all the books of the Old Testament three several times. The whole impression was completed under his guidance in December, 1772, soon after which the worthy Bishop died.

In the year 1776, Mr. Kelly received an invitation from the Episcopal Congregation at Ayr, in North Britain, to become their Pastor. On this title he was ordained by the Bishop of Carlisle, before whom he preached the ordination sermon. From that time he continued to reside at Ayr, till the year 1779, when he was engaged by His Grace the Duke of Gordon as tutor to his son the Marquis of Huntley. The studies of this young nobleman Mr. Kelly continued to direct at Eton and Cambridge; and afterwards accompanied him on a tour to the continent. After his return, in the year 1791, by the interest of his noble patron, Mr Kelly obtained from the Chancellor the presentation to the Vicarage of Ardleigh, near Colchester, which preferment he continued to hold until 1807. Being presented by the Chancellor to the more valuable Rectory of Copford, in the same neighbourhood, he had the satisfaction of being enabled to resign his Vicarage in favour of his friend and brother-in-law the Rev. H. Bishop.

Mr. Kelly was of St. John's College, Cambridge, where he obtained the degrees of LLB. in 1794, and LLD. in 1799. In 1803 he corrected and sent to the press the grammatical notes on his native dialect. These were printed by Nichols and Son, with a neat dedication to the Doctor's former pupil, under the title of “A Practical Grammar of the antient Gaelic or language of the Isle of Mann, usually called Manks.” In 1805 he issued proposals for printing a Triglot Dictionary of the Celtic tongue, as spoken in the Highlands of Scotland, in Ireland, and in the Isle of Man. Considerable pains were bestowed in bringing to completion this useful and curious work. It has been the misfortune of Celtic literature that those learned persons whose mother-tongue happens to have been one of these dialects, have usually treated it with neglect. But it has been its still greater misfortune to be overlaid and made ridiculous by the reveries of many whose “zeal” is utterly “without knowledge.” Dr. Kelly furnished the rare and probably solitary example of a competent skill in these three last surviving dialects of the Celtic tongue. As his task advanced it was committed to the press. In 1808, sixty three sheets were printed, and the first part of the Dictionary, with the English turned into the three dialects was nearly or quite completed, when the fire at Messrs. Nichols reduced to ashes the whole impression. (See the account of this, Gent. Mag., vol. 78, page 100.) The Doctor's MSS., and some of the corrected proofs, it is understood, remain with the family; but whether the printing may ever be resumed is doubtful.

The Doctor gave to the press an Assize Sermon, preached at Chelmsford; and a sermon for the benefit of a certain Charitable Institution, preached at the same place. The former was printed at the instance of the Chief Baron, the latter at the earnest request of the Right Hon. Lord Woodhouse.

In 1785, Dr. Kelly married Louisa, eldest daughter of the ingenious Mr. Peter Dollond, of St. Paul's Church-Yard. The Doctor prepared a brief memoir of his wife's grandfather, John Dollond, F.R.S., the celebrated inventor of the achromatic telescope. The Doctor was seized with typhus fever in November, 1809, and after a short struggle expired on the 12th of that month. No man could be more sincerely regretted. To great acuteness of intellect, and sound and varied learning, was added a disposition, gentle, generous, and affectionate. His remains were accompanied to the grave by his parishioners in a body, and were interred, on the 17th of November, in his own Parish Church, when a discourse was delivered on the occasion by the Rev. J. G. Taylor of Dedham. Dr. Kelly left a widow, and an only son, who was a Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge.

In the Manx Sun of July 24th, 1858, the following announcement appeared, which deserves to be transferred to this memoir, as a tribute to the memory of Dr. Kelly, and at the same time as commemorating a generous act of his surviving relative. "We have been informed that Mrs. Gordon Kelly, widow of the late Gordon William Kelly, Esq., Recorder of Colchester, only son of the well-known Dr. Kelly, a native of this Island has transmitted to the Venerable the Archdeacon of this Diocese, the sum of £1000, for the purpose of founding at our Insular College an Exhibition to the Universities from that Institution, open to all competitors; and another sum of £100, the interest of which Mrs. Kelly wishes to be given annually as a Manx Prize. The Rev. Dr. Kelly was an old alumnus of the Douglas Grammar School, where he was a very favourite pupil of the Rev. Philip Moore; and afterwards took a large share in the general revision of the translation of the Manx Scriptures."

NOTICE BY THE COUNCIL OF THE MANX SOCIETY.

The Council of the Manx Society repose full confidence in the judgment of the Rev. Mr. Gill. As the authorised Translator of the Acts of Tynwald into Manx, he holds the highest place of authority as to the living Manx language. He has had long experience in preaching, and in the other duties of a Manx Parish Clergyman. As the Editor of their edition of Dr. Kelly's Manx Grammar, he has already placed the Manx Society in his debt. And now with such coadjutors as Messrs. Clarke and Mosley, Mr. Gill's edition of Dr. Kelly's great work must command the confidence of all Manxmen, and be an abiding monument of the final stage of the fast disappearing dialect of the Celtic language, indigenous to the Isle of Man. The Council of the Manx Society congratulate their subscribers, and the inhabitants of the Isle of Man, upon the completion of this national work.

MANNINAGH AS BAARLAGH.

A is ranked among the broad Vowels; and in ancient manuscripts a, o, and u, are written indifferently, one for the other, as clagh or clogh a stone; awin or owin a river; goun or goan scarce; thus among the Latins, forreus for farreus, Fovius for Fabius; and sometimes it is pronounced as a English in man, pan, lad, bad, &c., as sap, a wisp of straw; lab, a stroke; bab, a child.

A, is a privative particle, signifies not; and answers in some degree to the Latin in, English un, and Greek a; and is used in composition; as, a-slaynt, disease, sickness; literally, no health; from a no, and slaynt health, from slane whole, i. e. s, or is, or smoo, and lane full.

A, prep. of or from; the same as y, which is generally used, as ben a thie, cosh a troan, Juan a Kelly, Juan y Kelly, Juan o Kelly. [rane &c.]

A, voc, the same as o; as A Veayllee Char-A, when aspirated, or written cha, and used with verbs, signifies no, not, as cha jeanyim, I will not; cha nel, cha nee, it is not.

A, s. speech, as distinguished from the sounds of animals; so ra speech is from er-a, on or after speaking, and gra to say is from eg-er-a, at having spoken.

AA or A, A preposition used in composition and implies a repeated action, as the Latin re again, and is joined to nouns, verbs and participles, as nah, or yn aa, the second, nah laa, next day, i. e. yn aa laa.

AA, A or AAH, s. pl. AAHGHYN, a ford, a shallow place in a river, as aah ny thingey, AYRNEY, v. to divide, to share, to partake.

AYRNIAGH s. pl. EE. a partner, a partaker.

"Gyn ayrniagh choohie jeh'n vaynrys vooar v'ch ayn." P.C.

AYROIL, a. fatherly, parental.

AYROILAGH, AYROILID, AYROILYS, s. fatherliness, fatherhood.

B is a labial letter, and pronounced as b English. When it is the initial of a feminine noun adjective it is changed into v, whereas the Irish add only the aspirate to it, as, bane, m; vane, f. Ir. ban; fem. bhan. When b is the initial of a feminine noun substantive preceded by the article yn, it is also changed into v, as, yn ven, from ben; Ir. an bhan, the woman; but when it is preceded by the genitive case plural of the article yn, viz., by ny or by the possessive pronoun nyn, b is changed into m, as from boght, nyn moghtyn, ban-naght ny moghtyn or moght.

BAA, a. belonging to a cow, cattle or kine. gen. of BOOA of a cow. s. pl. of BOOA cows, cattle.

BAAGH, BEAAGH, s. pl. BEIYN, a beast, animal, cattle.

BAAGH-KEOI, s. a mad or wild beast.

BAAGH-OALDEY, s. a wild, untamed animal.

BAAGH-OBBYR, s. a beast of burden, a working beast.

BAAGH-OURALAGH, s. a victim.

BAAGHTAGH, a. beastly, animal.

BAAGHTYS, s. beastliness.

BAAGH-VLUIGHT, s. a milch cow, or any animal.

BAAL, s. Baal, Apollo, the Sun. Baal, Beel, Bel, or Bol, a king of the Assyrians, son of Nimrod, and father of Ninus, was the first who applied himself to the study of astronomy, and being deified by his subjects, was the first Apotheosis, and hence called Baal, Dominus and Baal Sauin, Dominus celi. Diod. Sic. l. 3. Thus the Assyrian or Phœnician Baal, and the Apollo of the Greeks appear to be the same, and to mean the Sun; for the word Grian, the Celtic for Sun, is the Grynœus Apollo: and as the different Planets were held by the Greeks and Romans, according to Cicero, to be the gods whose names they bear, so the Sun under the different appellations above-mentioned, was the God of the Assyrians, Phœnicians, Samaritans, and Carthaginians, as well as of the Irish, Erse, Manks, and all the Celtic Tribes. Among the Greeks and Romans, however, Apollo was only a secondary deity; among the Celts Baal or the Sun was the great and perhaps their only God; while the Moon, the Queen of Heaven, under the name of Ashturoth, or Astarte, was their only Goddess. Judg. x. 6. (Ir. Bal, Bel, Beel, Beal; lat. Apollo.)

BAAAL-SAUIN, s. the name of Baal; and signifies Lord of Heaven or the Sun. The first day of November was dedicated to his worship, and is called Laa-Souiney, and the Season or Month yn Tauyn; because anciently the first day of November was the first day of the year: and the Mummers on the eve of All-Saints' Day still begin their petition with these remarkable words, "To-night is New Year's night. Og-u-naa. The Moon shines fair and bright. Tro-la-la." On this night, in the words of Jeremiah, "the women knead their dough to make cakes to the Queen of Heaven," which is the Moon alluded to in the Mummer's petition, called in Scripture, Ashturoth: "They served Baalim and Ashturoth." Much ceremony is observed in making this cake, which is sacred to love, (for the Syrian Astarte is supposed to be the Greek Venus,) and is called the "soddag valloo" or dumb cake. Every woman is obliged to assist in mixing the ingredients, kneading the dough and baking the cake on glowing embers; and when sufficiently baked they divide it, eat it up, and retire to their beds backwards without speaking a word, from which silence the cake derives its name, and in the course of the night expect to see the images of the men who are destined to be their husbands. This eve is called "oie houiney."

BAAALTINN, pronounced BOLTINN, the name of a district in the Parish of Kirk Bradan. It consists of a projection of the mountain Carraghan, the sides whereof are inclosed by two rivers, which meet at a place called the Aah-mod or Dogs'-ford. [2. Qu, now Ballamoddey? Ed.] This river is afterwards called White river, and falls into another called the Black river; below the junction of which is the town of Douglass, deriving its name from the union of the Doo (black) and the Glass (grey) rivers. In the centre of Baaltinn is a small village called Aal-caer or Baal's town. Adjoining to Aal-caer are the ruins of an old Temple, called Kil Ammon (Cella Ammonis). [About 18 × 12 feet. On the site of these ruins the Chapel of St. Luke was built, A.D. 1836. Ed.] Near to this was an ancient Tynwald or Tinn-Vaal, i.e., the altar or fire of Baal, where all new Laws were promulged, and the seats of the 24 Keys or Parliament of the Island are still pointed out. Here was a pillar with an inscription, as I have been often told, but it was carried off and broken to mend a neighbouring stone wall. This Tinn Vaal was coeval with another on Cronc-urley, in the north side of the Island; as at that time the Island was under two Governments, and the distinctions of North-side and South-side still remain. But when Man came to be under one Government, the present Tinn Vaal, or Tennial, or Tynwald, as being more central, was erected, and the Chapel (dedicated to St. John the Baptist, on whose festival the Tinn-Vaal is annually held), was appropriated to the religious services which the meetings at Tinn-vaal might require. A fair was, however, held at the old Tinn-Vaal in Baal-tinn, until lately. There is an opinion in this part of the country that the church commonly called Kil Ammon should be named Kil Abban, or the Abbott's Church; and that it was either built, at the introduction of Christianity into the Island, on the ruins of Baal's temple, or that the Pagan Kil Ammon was then converted into the Christian Kil Abban. It is certain, however, that at a very early period the village of Aalcaer received the name of Balla Chreest, Christ's town; but has not retained it in use, tho' it is so called in the Records. The high-road to Kil Ammon is called the Raad Jiarg (red road). About a mile to the south of this Tinn Vaal is Balla-vriw, the Judge's Town, which, as well as part of Aalcaer, is the property of the family of Kelly, [the Rev. Doctor's family.—Ed.] who most probably were Judges or Druids of that religious and judicial institution.

The adjoining town or balla is called Baal-ny-moddey, the town of Dogs; and higher up the valley another town is called Aah Whuallian or the whelp's ford. I mention these names, as the modern believers in the God Belus are of opinion that these dogs in their respective stations were the guards of the sacred Tinn-vaal, Baal-tinn, or fire of Baal. On St. Stephen's day the inhabitants of this district assemble to hunt the little Wren, which, when caught and killed, they fasten to the top of a long pole and carry about in procession, with drums beating, and colours flying, and distribute for money the feathers of the bird, which are esteemed by the purchasers to be a charm against all evils for the ensuing year. So far is common with the practice of other parts of the Island; but in Baal-tinn the body of the naked Wren is deposited with much solemnity in Kil Ammon, and the evening concludes with a variety of games on the open ground which adjoins. While some think this to be an emblem of the change from human sacrifices to those of beasts in the offerings of Baal, others think, with apparently more reason, that it is a superstitious memorial of the death of the saint. It may be right in this place to explain the reason why Baal-tinn and Tinn Vaal are supposed to be the same word, and to mean the same thing. Bealtuinne is of Irish origin, and Tinn-vaal of Manks, as being peculiar to the Isle of Man; for whenever or generally when two substantives are put in apposition, the Irish place that word first, which the Manks put last, as Irish aitcheangal is in Manks kiangley-olt, buidhemhios is mee-vuigh, July, lhong-phort, a harbour, purt-lhong or lhuingys. Ir. saix-vheurla, baarl-sausinagh. McCurtin also, author of the Irish Dictionary explains Bealtuinne by Teinne Bheil, and by Teinne Bhehuis. But should Tinn veal and Baal tinn be the same, and both signify Baal's altar and fire, and the court where new laws were promulged, there will be a difficulty in accounting for the Icelandic, "Althing, or common court of justice, which is kept every year on the 8th of July, at Thing-Valla." * For though the Icelandic names and their uses resemble those of the Celtic; yet we cannot think them of Celtic origin. Here, then, is a field of curious inquiry for the learned antiquarian. (Ir. Bealtuinne; lat. Appollinis ignis, for teinn or teinney fire, is eign or eigney without the t, which is added because of the word beginning with a vowel; therefore ignis is of the same Celtic origin.

BAALTINN (LAA), s. May-day, or the day of Baal's fire, or of the Sun, from tinn celestial fire, and Baal the god Baal, or the Sun. On this day [the eve of this day.—ED.] the inhabitants kindle fires on the summits of the highest hills, in continuation of the practice of the Druids, who made the cattle, and probably "the children, to pass through the fire," using certain ceremonies to expiate the sins of the people; but the modern practice is, for each balla or town to kindle a fire, so that the wind may drive the smoke over their corn fields, cattle and habitations. Which custom, independent of the religious use, might have a temporal benefit also in view, by killing the insects which infest the trees and corn at that season. It is also the usage to put out the culinary fires on that day, and to rekindle them with some of the sacred fire. On this day, likewise, the young people of different districts form themselves into two parties, called the Summer and the Winter (Sourey as Geurey), and having appointed a place of meeting, a mock engagement takes place, when the winter party gradually recedes before the summer, and at last quits the field. There is an appropriate song, the burden of which is, Hug eh my fainey; sourey thien, &c. ["He gave my ring; summer with us," &c. I can make no sense of this.—ED.] On this day, and also on Laa Souney (the first of November), malefactors were punished with death by fire, and human sacrifices were offered to Baal; which, however, both at Carthage and in Ireland, according to the ancient historians, were laid aside, and the sacrifice of beasts substituted in their stead. Val. Gr. 124. On May-eve, the inhabitants dress their houses with flowers, and before every door a considerable space is strewn with primroses; and crosses are made of mountain-ash (caorin), which are fastened to their cattle and worn by themselves as preservatives against witchcraft. On this eve also the damsel places a snail between two pewter dishes, and expects to find next morning the name of her future husband in visible characters on the dish; but the success of this depends on her watching until midnight, and having first purified her hands and face by washing them in the dew of wheat.

BAALAN, s. the plant — (?) a fillet, a chaplet. This plant is gathered on

* Von Troil's Letters on Iceland, p. 72.

Midsummer-eve, and made into chaplets, or circles, which are worn on the head of man and beast, to preserve them against witchcraft and evil. The word is literally Baal's chaplet, from an the circle or ring, and Baal of Baal; in commemoration of Baal or the Sun, the god of the Celts, having completed his circle or course. When I say in commemoration of Baal, I do not mean to say that the people have any traditional memory of Baal, or consciousness of celebrating, in this and the preceding articles, any religious ceremony to him. These acts arise from immemorial usage, without any knowledge of their origin annexed to them; but the most ancient Irish historians, and many learned Celtic scholars, believe and maintain that the ceremonies alluded to are the remains of the heathen worship paid by the Druids and the Celtic nations to their god Baal. Ir. mallan, or malan; W. banal, broom.

BAALAN-FEAIL-OIN, s. the chaplet made of the plant—(?) and worn on the eve of St. John the Baptist. The literal etymology of the word is, An a chaplet, Baal of Baal, feailley on the feast Eoin of John. [Bollan-y-feail-oin, which the inhabitants gather and keep in their houses on account of its medicinal properties.—Ed.]

BAILLYM, I wish, I desire, oh that I might or could; bailt, thou; baillish, he; pl.

bailhien, bailliu, baillad. This word is often used for saillym, which is the original baillym, being compounded of by and saillym, i.e., b'aillym, as from soalagh comes b'oalagh to accustom. When baillym or saillym is emphatical, it changes the ordinary pronoun ym of me into its emphatical pronouns as baillyms and saillyms, pl. bailiuish, &c. This is one of the few verbs which use the final pronoun ym in the present tense, this particle being used to form the future; whereas it is generally the sign of the present tense in Irish. Bailt in the second person is a contraction of bail lhiat; as, mannagh bail lhiat. (Ir. is toil leam, is toil leat, &c.)

BAINC, s. a couch.

"Sy laa my vainc ta fliugh lesh jeir,
As my chione-eyrt 'syn oie."

QHENNEY, or TIENNEY, s. pl. QHENTYN, fire, ether, pure elementary fire, not that culinary fire which we call AILE, or that which appears in ignited bodies. This is that TIEN or TIENNEY which our ancestors worshipped, not ultimately or for itself, but relatively to the SUPREME BEING, for they supposed God to be present in the fire; though the practice of men might, in length of time, degenerate from the original institution and rest in the object of sense, and, like Cain, introduce the worship of the sun, as the best resemblance he could find of the glory of the Lord, who was wont to appear in a flaming light. A notion of something divine in fire prevailed in the most distant times and places, even among the Chinese, who make TIEN, ether or heaven, the sovereign cause of all things, and adore it under the name of Tien. The Greeks and all the Eastern nations consider the sun as the spirit of the world. The Romans had their Vesta, the Egyptians their Vulcan, and our Celtic grandsires their Baal or Bel-ghin or Tien. (Cor. Arm. and W. tân, anciently Ir. teine.)

G

G is pronounced as g English, in get, go.
 It has no soft sound, as in English gentle.
 Almost all words beginning with gh in composition, have g or d for their radical initial letter,—[Ed.]
 Many words beginning with g in composition have c or h for their radical initial letter.
 All verbs beginning with this letter, as gra, to say, geaishtagh, to hear, gagglagh to frighten, are compounded of ec or ag at; and the participle or noun; as gra is ec raa at saying, or the saying; gaglagh is ag at, and agglagh frightening.

GA, conj. although, notwithstanding, as ga dy r'ou scrieu, foast, though thou wert writing, yet. Ga also signifies, many, more, as dooi'ney ny gha, many a man. Ga comes from the numeral daa, two; as if it expressed more than one.

GAELCK, s. gen. GAILGEY. The language spoken by the inhabitants of the Isle of Man, and called Manks, Mankish, or Manx. It is radically the same as the Irish or as the Erse or Gaelic, which is spoken in the Highlands of Scotland. As this point is sometimes doubted, and it is frequently denied that the Highland language or Erse, which is a corruption of the word Irish, and the Irish Gaelic are the same, I shall mention the following fact. When the Rev. Philip Moore and myself were engaged in preparing the Manks translation of the Holy Scriptures for the press, the Rev. — Mc. Laggan, chaplain to his Majesty's 42nd Regiment of Highlanders, frequently visited us and often assisted us in the recovery or the application of obsolete words, and assured us that he made use of no other Bible in his regiment but the Irish Bible, which had been published by Bishop Bedell, from whence I conclude that these three languages are the same, though I must observe that the Manks tongue is more corrupt than theirs, having a mixture of Danish and English words, in consequence of this island having been so long under the government of Norway; and also of Greek and Latin words, from the island being for many ages the seat of learning, where the royal family of Scotland regularly received their education, particularly while it was under the dominion of that kingdom. But, while I think these languages to be the same, I must declare that I can find no resemblance between the Welsh and the Manks, and I can hardly believe that the Erse is a dialect of that language, but that they are originally different. It is certain that there is a great resemblance in the inflection by a change of the initials, which is a strong presumption of their being branches of one original stock. There are also many words alike in both; but then those words can be proved to have been borrowed from, or used by, some third people; as the word, tarroo, a bull; Irish, tarbh; W., tarw; from the Lat., taurus. Iurin, hell; Ir. ifrionn; W., uffern; from the Lat., infernus. And, indeed, all the terms or words which are employed upon religious subjects are borrowed from the language of the propagators of the Christian religion; and so are all the terms of art: though I know several gentlemen who, from a zeal for the antiquity and purity of their Gaelic, suppose from this circumstance, that there is a vulgar tongue, and a learned language; forgetting, or ignorant, that all these holy words may be resolved into the Latin, Greek, Italian, or French languages, according to the country of the first preacher that introduced into the language such particular words—as the word padjer, a prayer, from Pater noster; which became a term for prayer in general; Agglis, or rather eccles, from the Lat., ecclesia, instead of the vulgar word keel, a church; Spyrryd Noo, the Holy Ghost, from the Lat., Spiritus, and Gr., Noos, Sanctus, instead of the common word, casherick; Sermene or sharmene, from sermo, instead of the vulgar expression, taggloo; Ooashley or oasley-Jee, the worship of God, from the English worship, and Lar dei; Saccert or saggart, from sacerdos, Maistyr, master, from magister; with innumerable others, which are unnecessary to be cited in this place. (Ir. and G. gaoidheilg.)

GAELC-ERINAGH, the Irish Gaelic or Erse. (Ir. Gaig-Erinnach.)

The etymology of this word Gaelc, or of Gael, a Gaul, (English) is very uncertain; some deriving it from Gadelas, the Iberian invader of Ireland (Gaodhal Glas); others from Gaodhla, Gaodin, Gaothin; others from Gallus, an appellation given by the Babylonians to Noe or Ninus, when he was saved from the flood; for gal signified a wave; also from the Greek gala, (milk) because of their fair and milky complexion; and in M. and Ir. gial and geal signify white and fair. Thus also the Galati, Galatians, who were a tribe of Gauls, may have received their name. But the learned Pezron has proved the Celts to have taken the name of Gallu, i.e., conquerors, from the time of their emigration from Media into Cappadocia. This word Gallu is still preserved in the British Celtic, and signifies power. This people, according to different writers, are called Guelte, Keltæ, Gaelgæ, Belgæ, Guelque, Guelc, Gaelc, Gelc.

GRIAN, s. fem. the sun, ta'n ghrian yial er chooillean e jurnah. P. C. (Ir. grian.)

The sun was anciently worshipped by the Celts under the name of Bel, Beal, Baal, Boal, or Beul; (vid. bealtin.) and by the Greeks under the name of Apollo, which differs very little in the sound. He was called Grian from grianey or grianagh, to bask, heat or scorch, which word was latinized into Grynæus and Grannus, and became a classical epithet of Apollo. In Camden we meet with an inscription found in Scotland, dedicated Appollini Granno; in Mauks, Boal or Pol Grianagh.

His tibi Grynæi nemoris dicatur origo.

KIARE-AS-FEED, The keys or parliament of the Island are so called from their number, as they consist of twenty-four persons. But as it is used as a proper name in conversation, it has, therefore, the article prefixed; as yn-chiare-as-feed. This is supposed by the ingenious Rev. Wm. Fitzsimmons, to be a corruption of cor-an-phaid, the company of the prophets, wisemen, or rulers; for no doubt that cor is choir or company, and phaid or phadeyrys, prophecy. The government of the Island consisted of two parts, the executive and the legislative. The king was vested with the whole executive power, and had the sole appointment of his own officers and council; the power of making and repealing laws, rested with the keys, who were obliged, in conjunction with the other power, to call annually a Tynwald or meeting of the people, where all new laws were publicly proclaimed three times, otherwise they were of no force, and a man could plead in court the ignorantia legis. I could never find whether the people had any other negative upon the promulgation of an unpopular law, except force, to which, according to several traditional accounts, they were frequently obliged to have recourse, and were always successful in the application of it. This is not to be wondered at, as the keys were self-elected, and when a member died they chose two men out of the body of the people, and presented them to the king for his approbation of one of them. And, besides, they as well as the court were exempt from most of the duties and taxes the people laboured under, and together exercised an arbitrary power; as an instance of which I shall only mention, that whenever any of them wanted servants, they had a right to yard, that is, to compel by virtue of a statute or slatys, and force into their service the best servants in the Island, wherever they were to be found, and without allowing them common wages. Yet, notwithstanding this connection between the parliament and the court, it has been found that when the court has attempted any innovation, the keys have uniformly joined the people. When the Earl of Derby endeavoured to remove the people from their possessions, and to consider the soil as his property, the people and keys united, and at last obtained from the Insular Legislature the Act of Settlement, A.D., 1704; which confirmed every man in the possession of his estate, and made his possession his property.

Notwithstanding the Island is annexed at present to the Crown of England, the laws and manner of government continue with little variation, except that the Governor, who is appointed by the Crown of England, acts, in most instances, in the place of the former Kings of Mann. It appears both from history and tradition, that at first the kiare-as-feed were chosen by popular election from each of the six sheadings; but that afterwards, on the death of one of the body, they presented two commoners to the king, and he was obliged to elect one of the two.

MAM, s. a measure which is as much as will lie upon the palm of the hand, or rather both hands.

MAN, s. Man, or Isle of Man. (W. mân, little.)

MANJOOR, s. a manger.

MANNANAN MAC Y LEAR, the name given by English historians to a sorcerer who reigned in Man, and by his power prevented all passengers from seeing it, by raising a mist to conceal it from their view. This is partly false and partly true; for that Mannanan governed or resided there is true; as the word Mannanan, or Mannana, or Mannanagh, means no more than that the inhabitants of the place were called Mannanee, as they are to this day, i.e., Manksmen or Mankishmen. It is true also that mists are so frequent, that ships approaching the Island may very easily be supposed, without much sorcery, to lose sight of it and miss it. But on the other hand, Mac y lear, or lear or leah, signifying the Son of the Seer, he must be a sorcerer himself. Yet as leah or lear is also the twilight when mists prevail most, a Manksmen may very properly be called Mannana mac y leah, the Son of the Mist, or Son of the Twilight. Or as lear is moreover the sea, he may be said to be the Son of the Sea.

MANNINAGH, MANNANAGH, s. pl. EE. a Manksmen or woman. (Manks, i.e., Mankish.) This patronimic Manninagh seems to destroy McPherson's etymology. According to him, the name of a Manksmen would be Meanagh, which would be either the middle man or the Monkish man, (as Balley-meanagh is Abbot's Land.) But this is answered by writing Meaninagh or mayninagh, the middle Islandman, or the Monkish Islandman. Yet use the word ellan, an island, and you do not say, yn ellan veanagh or veaninagh, the middle island; but yn Ellan Manin, the Island Man-isle, or Ellan Vanin, the Island of Man-isle; whilst meanin is literally the middle of the island, not the middle island. Nor is there an instance where the word mean is pronounced as with an a (short), but as an u there is; as mean-oie, midnight; mun-laa, midday, or the middle of them; besides the word mon, mean, or monos is sufficiently descriptive and satisfactory, except we prefer Mannia, from Mannus, Normannia and (q. the Southern Hebrides,) Sudormannia, so this island is (without reference to its situation) called Mannia.

MANNING, MANNIN, the Island of Man. This word is compounded of mean, according to Mc. Pherson, the middle, and in, an island, because it is situated between England, Ireland, and Scotland. (W. Manaw; Lat., by Cæsar, Mona.) But perhaps this island may have been called Man by the Norwegians (who were the descendants of the Germans), in honour of their god Mannus. "Tuistonem deum terrâ editum, ad filium Mannum, originem gentis conditoresque. Manno tres filios assignant," &c. Vid. Tacitus de mor. Ger. It is often spelt with two final n's, implying that it consists of several isles. As this island was called by Cæsar Mona, the word or name might imply the little, single spot; or the place of sorcery, from mon, a foretelling; and in the time of the Danes, the change of a letter favoured their superstition, and thus it was called Man, from Mannus. (W. mân, little.)

MWANNAL-CAM, a wry neck.

MWANNAL-Y-LAUE, the wrist.

MWANNAL-Y-CHASS, the small of the leg.

It might be thought unnecessary in this as well as in many other places, to give the particular meanings in English of the same Manks word; but I shall show the necessity of doing so in respect to this word mwannal; which will serve as a reason for the same practice in other places. A Manksman meant to inform an Englishman that he felt his ankles, or the small of his leg, cold. "I feel," said he, "the necks of my legs very cold." "Where is that?" said the Englishman. "No, no," said the Manksman, "I mean to say, the wrists of my legs are cold." "I am just as wise," says the Englishman, "as I was before." (Monile.)

MWANNALAGHT-STREEANEY, the throat band.

 TINN-VAAL, s. pr. name, Tinwald-hill, as it is usually called. It is supposed to signify a heap of earth and stones, which assumed the appearance of a hill. The word literally signifies the fire of Baal, the place of the fire or Altar of Baal. The Tinwald, or Court of the Tinwald, was anciently held in the central situation, in the parish of Kirk Braddan, called Baaltinn, for the south part of the Island, while the Tinn-vaal, for the north side, was at Knock-Urley. In Baaltinn are still the remains of an old temple, which, at the time of the introduction of Christianity, was converted into a church, and dignified by the name of Keeill Abban—i.e., the Abbot's Church. The Tinwald is at present held at St. John's Chapel, near Peel, upon St. John's Day, when all new laws are promulgated in the open air, in the presence of the people, three times, before they have the force of Law. There is a striking resemblance between the Gallic Tinvaal and the Icelandic Thingvalla. All causes in Iceland are first decided at the Harad's Thing, or County-court, from which the parties concerned may appeal to the Al-thing, or Common Court of Justice, which is kept every year, on the 8th of July, at Thingvalla. Von Troil's Letters on Iceland. London, 1780, p. 72. See Baaltinn. The Rev. W. Fitzsimmons has the following note after Tinn Vaal:—"Tynwald is ting, a court, and wall, a hillock, or mount, or mote, the court mote."

EDITOR'S PREFACE

TO THE ENSUING ENGLISH AND MANX DICTIONARY.

DR. KELLY left no English and Manx Dictionary corresponding to his Manx and English Dictionary. He had, however, prepared a Triglot of Manx, Irish, and Erse, based upon English; and had commenced the printing of the work when a fire broke out in the printing office and destroyed the sheets that were worked off. This put a stop to its publication at that time. Had the Triglot been published, it would, though necessarily a large and expensive work, have superseded in some measure an English and Manx Dictionary.

The Manx Society had for some time entertained the design of publishing the learned Doctor's Triglot entire; the manuscript of which had been generously put into their hands by MRS. GORDON KELLY. But on deliberation this design was abandoned.

Their attention was then directed to an English and Manx Dictionary, in manuscript, which purported to supply the place of a second part to DR. KELLY'S Dictionary. This was the work of Mr. JOHN IVON MOSLEY, of Manchester, a gentleman who without any of the advantages of a residence in the Isle of Man, had prepared a Dictionary which reflected great credit on his intellectual acumen and philological research.

It became, however, a matter of inquiry, how far an English and Manx Dictionary might be drawn from the Doctor's own more copious work; and on examination, it was found that the English and Manx portions of the Triglot were well adapted to form the groundwork of the required sequel.

The Society thereupon decided on availing themselves of the Doctor's learned labours, and requested the Rev. W. GILL, and the Rev. J. T. CLARKE to revise that portion of the Doctor's work, adapting it to form the second part to his Dictionary, and adding thereto all such words from CREGEEN'S and MOSLEY'S Dictionaries as would improve and enrich the volume. This labour has fallen chiefly into the hands of Mr. CLARKE, who has brought a life-long acquaintance with the language to bear upon the performance of the task assigned him. He has judged it advisable to make numerous alterations on his own responsibility, which cannot in all cases be acknowledged. His own additions are distinguished by the letter C affixed to them ; those from CREGEEN by the letters Cr. ; and those from MOSLEY by the letter M. Notwithstanding these alterations and additions, the work may still be received as entitled substantially to the sanction of Dr. KELLY'S name.

INTRODUCTION.

The following notice appears to have been intended by DR. KELLY to be preparatory to the publication of his Triglot Dictionary. It is considered worthy of a place here as an interesting introduction to his English and Manx Dictionary :—

To cultivate a language and to improve a people are similar offices. Under a conviction of this truth I have, with much labour, compiled a Dictionary of the Gaelic Language as it is spoken in Scotland, Ireland, and Man. The writers who have preceded me on this subject have endeavoured to obtain the attention of the public by dwelling on the great antiquity of the Gaelic, by commending the vast energy of its phraseology, and by displaying the etymological purity of its words. On all these accounts it is highly worthy the attention of the scholar and the antiquary. But these are confined objects, embracing words and neglecting men. The enlarged minds of the primitive bishops, Wilson and Hildesley, “who loved the language and the people who spoke it,” studied it with a higher view,—to render it by publication instrumental in removing ignorance, communicating truth, and obtaining a knowledge of English. Their motives were religious and moral; but the present state of the empire holds out to government and individuals another motive at this time not less imperious, that unity of language is the surest cement of civil as well as of religious establishments.

INTRODUCTION.

It has long been the policy of France to render her language universal, and she has acquired more influence by its becoming the court language of Europe than even by her arms in the field. Had a similar policy been extended by this country to Ireland;—had books been printed in Gaelic, and Gaelic schools established in those parts of Ireland where Gaelic is the vulgar tongue, the people would have acquired learning by using the English alphabet,—they would have read English before they could read Irish, by reading Irish through an English medium,—they would have understood English before they had learnt Irish,—such a portion at least of English as would beyond a doubt have enabled them by reading and conversation to have diminished, if not altogether to have removed, the deplorable ignorance, poverty and bigotry under which they have so long laboured. Had the benefited clergy likewise been qualified by a knowledge of the language spoken by their parishioners,—had they been obliged to preach,—had they been obliged to pray in Gaelic, many of the evils which have befallen Ireland might have been avoided, and those with which it is at present threatened most probably prevented. It is true that in process of time this cultivation of the Gaelic language will destroy the language itself, as a living language; but it will have produced the knowledge of a better, and will descend to posterity by means of the press in a more perfect state, than if it should be found only in the conversation of unlettered individuals. There would be no more cause for regret, then, that it was not a living language, than there is at present, that the Hebrew, Greek, and Latin are no longer such.

By the publication of Gaelic books, and more particularly by the clergy being obliged to understand, and to use the Gaelic language, the Roman Catholic faith was entirely superseded in Man. Of thirty thousand inhabitants, there is not to be found one native who is a Roman Catholic, nor a single dissenter from the Established Church of England. The same wisdom exercised by the rulers of the Church of Scotland, has produced similar effects in the Highlands. By their clergy being obliged to use the Gaelic language in the Highland parishes, the national and political prejudices, which formerly existed so strongly there, are entirely removed, and the knowledge of the English language, in consequence of the publication of the Gaelic Scriptures and Gaelic books, is everywhere gaining ground. And when there shall be one national language, then only will the union of the empire be completely established.

To go at length into this argument is not the intention of this notice. If what has been here suggested shall obtain the means of printing and putting into circulation in Scotland, Ireland, and Man, a considerable number of the volumes of this Dictionary, much good will be done; and as that is my object, it will also be my reward.
